THE JERUSALEM

MARGINAL COLUMN

OF views on the relationship between Israel and the Diaspora there is no end. That they are often sharply contradictory is not necessarily a bad thing; for is it not said that controversy for the sake of noble ends is essentially constructive? Other truth in controversies affecting whole peoples is to be found in what the ordinary man says. "See how the Man-in-the-Street reacts." was a rule used often in Talmudic times in cases of deep perplexity. This is berne out in connection with Israel and the Diaspora by the experience of an American, experience of an American experience of a service here for something over a third of a century. He arrived here indiway through the twenties, after a brilliant and successful tenure of several pulpits in the U.S. He went into business and made his mark as an industrialist, but his ex-parishioners continued to miss him. After the State was established in 1945 they saw their opportunity and sent off a delegation armed with a handsome contract all signed and legal. "Listen," they said to live in Palestine and work for a Jewish State all these years; now you have Israel, come home and get back to work as our Rabbl."

IT is a curious point of view, humorous at first sight, but it has its serious undertones. For the Jewe of America, even those of the immigrant generation, American is so precious that it is not their failure to come here that is surprising, but the generosity of their support for this country. They were integrated into the life of the U.S. at a time when the integration of all sorts of minorities was so natural a reflection of the ethos of an effection of the ethos of not-belonging that haunted Jewish communities in other and more homogeneous Western countries. This does not mean that they never fettilisturbed by anti-Semitism. They were; often deeply so.

AT the risk of being charged with over-simplification one postulates that the attitude of U.S. Jewry to immigration to Israel is largely set by this pattern. One even ventures the thought that large-scale immigration from the U.S. will come when things get even better for the Jews of that country than they are at the present time; for it may be then that the eyes of a new generation will turn seekingly to the adventure of Jewish living that is Israel. The fact that the effort on behalf of Israel is one of the positive identifiable cementing characteristics of American Jewish communities in itself creates an important link at this time.

THERE is one view which may seem to contradict all this This is the argument from history that any Diaspora Jewish community can, in the end, meet with catastrophe and disaster and that U.S. Jewry cannot expect to be an exception. There is a great fallacy here. Historically the view may be sound. The difference today is that if catastrophe overtakes American Jewry it, would have to be part of an overwhelming catastrophe of the whole of American Democracy in its present form. If that should happen, then free men everywhere, would not remain unaffected, Israel included.

Welter of conflicting views on this relationship of Israel and the Diaspora, choose the optimistic one. The unity of tradition and aspiration between the American Diaspora and Israel; the fellowship in the building of Israel here and Jewish life over there will, in its own good time, inevitably produce a larger measure of personal identification by immigration.

without his being consulted. He concludes by wishing Mr. Lavon success in making the new Solel Bonch as efficient as his efforts have been au ceasful in undermining what existed previously.

Mr. S. Yavnieli also takes issue with Mr. Lavon's analysis of the dispute and the so-called "revolt." After sketching the history of the concern's ups and downs since its revival and its "unequalled contribution to the economy of the yishau," he stresses the fact that the men who were at the helm acted from a sort of inner compulsion; no one could speak of their being sent by the Histadrut institutions.

If the Hevrat Ovdim Secretariat were to accept the Hacohen proposals as to the new appointments as a basis for further discussion, there would be good prospects for an understanding on the question of the reorganization and the concern would then be able to get down to work along the lines laid down by the Histadrut Executive. But the fact remains that Hevrat Ovdim rejected the proposals.

Stick to Facts

Mr. Levi-Yitzhak Hayeru shalmi writes that the debate snam writes that he decaue over the structure of Solel Boneh and the composition of the managements should not be a theoretical debate, but one based on facts, and pro-ceeds to list these as follows:

HAIFA.— The free evening secondary school established last year by a group of public-spirited members of the Sephardi community is reopening on Thursday. Two hundred pupils have enrolled, double the number of the first year. Many of them are young people of the Sephardi community who have just completed elementary school and have been persuaded to continue their studies, although they must work during the day. Among the students are older persons and demobilized soldiers.

Twenty-six teachers have voting, which made the island delegate's election unanimous.

Mr. Ellan's nomination was sponsored by Costa Rica, seconded by Austria and supported by Liberia.

The election was the first time since the creation of the U.N. that an Israel delegate has been elected to any office in the Fourth Committee. It was also the first time in three years that an Israel Delegate has been elected to any office in the General Assembly.

Mr. Ellan's nomination was community who have just completed elementary school and have been persuaded to continue their studies, although they must work during the day, Among the students are older persons and dends in the Old City and in Bethlehem begins on Tuesday (today). Israel Drawing Closer To Europe Common Market

The State Department considers that the UAR. is within its rights in barring previous residents who are Jews from returning to Egypt, and questions the extent to which anti-Jewish discrimination is applied by the U.A.R. against American Jews.

This was made known on Friday in a letter from Assistant Secretary of State William Macomber to Sen. Jacob K. Javits, (Rep., N.Y.), drawing attention to this discrimination.

The letter said that Egypt is within its rights in the decree in barring the return of Jewish residents of Egyptian nationality, but if it orders discrimination against American citizens on the basis of religion, the State Department "would be prepared to make appropriate representations to the U.A.R. Government." LYDDA AIRPORT. - "Israel loping economic giant, the European Common Market. At the ESOMAR Congress (European Society for Opinion

Dr. Ludwig told correspondents that the market of a united Europe seems to be nearer its realization than we thought. This could be observed in the down-to-earth discussions on pricing of articles, tariff revisions, forecasting and sampling in the new area.

The first comprehensive survey in 11 European countries and, maybe, Israel as a 12th, is just being launched by an American market research firm. Dr. Ludwig said. Several bundred delegates from 12 European member countries and Yugoslavia, took part in the sessions. The U.S. and Istrael were represented by observers, she added.

Luton Town Take Lead | Where Javits Queries U.A.R. In English First Division

With only a quarter of the programme completed, the honours battle in the English soccer league is such that the top places change with practically every game. On Saturday there was yet another alteration in the leadership of Division I.

Luton Town, one of the two unbeaten sides in the English League, took over SPORT ROUND THE WORLD top spot.

In a great win by 4-1 over nearest rivals, Preston North End, the "Hatters" went to No. 1 place with 14 points. This was one in front of the Northenders ers twhile leaders. Belton Wanderers, who lost 2-1 at home to Burnley, and fighting Chelsea, all three hiving 13 points. Chelsea slammed Nottingham Forest, 4-1, with Jimmy Greaves, under-23 English international, contributing a hat-trick.

English International, contributing a hat-trick.

Reigning champions were out against Tottenham Hotspur before a huge crowd at White Hart Lane, and lost 2-1, despite a unique penalty goal, which was taken three times before it was credited to the Wolves. In a story of losses, Arsenal went down 2-1 at Leeds, West Ham United lost 2-0 at Black-pool. Blackburn Rovers succumbed 3-2 at home to Aston Villa and West Bromwich Albion disappointed their supporters by losing by the same score at home to lowly Everton. Fellow bottom-club, Manchester City, held Manchester United to 1-1 before a 62,000 crowd at Maine Road, with famous Bobby Chariton missing apenalty, and the United lucky to save a point.

Fulham Still Unbeaten

In Division II, Fulham remained the other unbeaten eleven, beating the "O's" 2-0 at Leyton. The Craven Cot-chardson of the USA. won a control of the USA.

Once upon a time scintillating Sunderland lost once again, 2-1 to Bristol Rovers and foot the Division II table in company with Lincoln City, both having five points. Plymouth Argyle, who won well over Bournemouth by 3-1, lead Division III, with Reading, 1-0 winners at Stockport, close in chase.

York City and Northampton Town share the Division IV top place, both with 15 points. York were held to a goal-less home draw by Watford, while the "Cobblers" defeated Southport, 3-1.

In the Scottish First Division, all leading sides, except champlons Hearts, lost in a day of upsets. The champions, as if to emphasise their superiority overwhelmed Third Lanark, 8-3, with "Woody" Hall netting five Rangers, Celtic and Hibernian were all on the losing end.

RESULTS, ENGLISH LEAGUE. Ein Gev shore as part of the "Kinneret Festival" eelebrations.

This was stated on Friday by Mr. Emmanuel Gil, of the Hapoel organization, at a press conference in Beit Sokolow. He added that the number of participants had been strictly limited, since every swimmer across the 10-kilometre course must be followed by a boat, which will indicate the best course and provide food and drink. Since the lake becomes rough in the early afternoon, any swimmer who does not reach the opposite shore within four hours must leave the water and get into the boat.

Several of the swimmers will serve as "guinea pigs" for medical research into the influence of such an effort on the human body.

EGGED TESTING
ITS OWN BUSES

TEL AVIV.— The Egged bus cooperative is now-operating its own vehicle testing station at the new garage in Haifa, a spokesman of the company has announced.

The testing station, which the licensing authority has empowered to function independently, is managed by two certified inspectors employed by Egged. In addition to regulation appliances, the station has brake testing machinery capable of raising the largest buses and a dynamometer which can test the pull of engines by duplicating the road with a full load.

The new station enables buses to be tested without going to the Licensing Office, often a full day's job. It will also contribute to greater in addition to the annual test prescribed by law.

The World Famous

The problems of de aulle will therefore now be the problems of all statesmen brought to or kept in power by a broad coali-tion of heterogeneous elements. Amongst the 80 per cent of Frenchmen who voted for de Gaulle, some favour the integration of Algeria with France, others believe this integration to be impossible; some hope that de Gaulle will bring peace to North Africa through negotiations with the rebels; others that he will succeed in crushing the revolt; some believe that he will call both the Algerians and Colons to obedience, others that the aims of these Colons and of the Algerian Army will eventually become the Government.

POST China in Frenzy To Raise Output

By BON G. WHITEHEAD
HONG KONG (NANA). — Perhaps in no country in the world, the "classless" Soviet Union included, do standards of living vary as greatly as in Communist China.
According to a recent report by Peking's Minister of Agriculture, Llao Lo-yien,
the average annual profits of a Red Chinese farmer are equivalent to about $15 in American money. More than 30% of the mainland Chinesse are farmers.

The $15, actually is a net
return. The farmer earus

but this is what happens to his money:
One-fourth goes towards repaying his current loans and making an advance on next season's expenses. In addition, he pays a 15% agricultural tax and a 2.5% (sometimes 5%) surfax. Upto 12% goes into a sinking fund and while between 11%
and 12% more is put aside
for reserves.
Fully three-quarters of the farmer's crop is handed back to the State in these taxes.
Of the remaining fourth, he

Factory workers are better off, but not by much. A skilled technician in heavy industry may earn the equivalent of $24 to $36 a month, while an unskilled worker carns between $16 and $24.
Bureaucrats fare better. Mayors and bureau chiefs receive from $120 to $170 a month — or 100 times a farmer's annual earnings. This doesn't include the extras — a car, a house, expense money.
In the army, privates receive $7 a month; a senior non-commissioned officer, $25; a colonel, $250 and a major general, $300.

general, $300.

Among the highest paid class in Communist China are the visiting Soviet technical expert at Manchuria's Anshan steel complex reportedly earns $2,000 a month—ten times what a Chinese Communist colonel earns. A Chinese tarmer would have to toil for eight generations to save what the Moscow man earns in one month.

Costly Soviet Aid

China, anxious to achieve industrial power and econo-mic independence as quickly as possible, has hitherto remic independence as quickly as possible, has hitherto relied on costly Soviet aid to build big industrial complexes whose construction requires several years. However, the Chinese, rebelling against the delays and expense involved in this slavish mimicry of Soviet industrialization, are today creating hundreds of thousands of small and medium plants all over the country. These can be built in a matter of months and can ensure a stupendous increase in production to meet local consumer demand in a short time. They require no Soviet equipment or technical knowledge and cost no foreign exchange. Furthermore they release the higher quality of the highest official concerned?

Nevertheless, in the Chinese provinces I saw what was meant by "smail and medium local industry." There were simply constructed furnaces producing anything from two to 20 tons of pig iron or earbon steel a day, and local forges and casting shops where this metal was converted into a farm tools, boilers, even cast iron rails for local communications.

This scheme may indeed enable China to overtake Britain, at least in sheer solid weight of output if not in quality. It will, moreover, immeasurably accelerate Peking's plans for building China into the greatest producing late for a concert. New the West.
